Pennsylvania Mine Owners Decide To Join With Other Districts.

BID DEFIANCE TO THE STEEL TRUST

Independents Declare They Will Not Fill Contract For Big Corporation If It Is Taken Away From The Pittsburg Coal Company.

[Special to The Gazette.]

Pittsburg, Pa., March 10.—The coal operators of the Pittsburg district resent the action of President Roosevelt in intervening to prevent the threatened strike of miners.

A mild sensation was sprung at Friday's conference of the operators when a demand was made of resident Robbins of the Pittsburg Coal company to explain how President Roosevelt came to take this step. The demand was made by George B. Magoon, vice-president and general manager of the Pittsburg & Westmoreland Coal company, one of the largest of the independent coal companies.

Mr. Robbins said the whole matter was accomplished as a result of a conference with John Mitchell while they were in New York. The situation was serious and both agreed that it was necessary to get another meeting of the interstate conference.

How Call Was Arranged.

Mr. Robbins, explaining further, said that Mr. Mitchell went to the long distance telephone and called up the president at the white house. After explaining the status of the matter to him he suggested that he write a letter to Mr. Robbins urging that a new conference be called. He also asked the president to talk the matter over with Robbins and without changing the call Mr. Robbins went to the line and arranged for the letter to be written which would be the basis of the second call of the general conference.

This was on Monday, Feb. 24, and the following day, Feb. 25, Mr. Robbins received the letter from President Roosevelt and the call of another convention followed. This, Mr. Robbins explained, was the story of the president's intervention.

The independent operators of this district, as well as those of Ohio and Illinois, will support the Pittsburg Coal company in resisting the demands of the United States Steel corporation.

The coal company has a contract to supply the steel company not less than 8,000,000 tons of coal a year for twenty-five years. The steel corporation recently notified the coal company it must fill its contract or it will be turned over to independent operators. Under the agreement practically entered into the independent operators will refuse to furnish coal to the steel company in the event of a strike if it should take the contract from the Pittsburg Coal company. This unties the hands of the Pittsburg Coal company and leaves it free to resist the demands of the miners.

Operators to Be United.

It was decided that when the operators of the Pittsburg district meet at Indianapolis March 19 with the operators of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois they will take a stand as a body. There were about fifty operators present, and after the meeting it was announced that the wage schedule had not been discussed and the only action taken was the adoption of a resolution to meet the operators from the three states at the time set.

One of the strongest points made at Friday's conference was against any settlement for more than a single year. The longer term was held to be against the interest of the producers, who have to bear the variations of the coal market and the lowering costs with a fixed cost of mining. Miners have been taking it for granted that the two-year scale was of the operators' seeking.

What care we about politics, graft, legislation or the making of history—when the only real event of the year looms up again?

homes as a genuine English nobleman, and captivated Miss Wilhelmina Grace Cochrane of Kansas City, who was visiting here. They were wedded on January 21, 1903, but Miss Cochrane's brother discovered that Barton was an impostor, next day, and administered a public horse-whipping. His wife left him three days afterward, and then he was sent to the workhouse for vagrancy and disorderly conduct.

The crime which brought him to the end of his rope was the murder of James P. McGann, owner of race horses and man about town, who took him up and befriended him after his release from the workhouse. On June 18, 1902, McGann was lured to a lonely spot near the Bonfils post office, shot and killed, and his body thrown into an abandoned quarry. At the time the Missouri river had overflowed its banks and had almost reached the quarry. It is supposed that the murderer thought it would be washed away by the flood.

The body was discovered, however, a week later by some people working in the vicinity, and Barrington was arrested. It was shown that he had gone to Bonfils with McGann that night; that he had left the car with him at the station, walked in the direction of the quarry; and that five minutes later two revolver shots were heard by the street car crew.

Barrington admitted having gone to the place with McGann, but declared that while walking along the road they were attacked by two strange men, who evidently had a grudge against McGann. He said he was struck from behind and left unconscious in the road. When he awoke he was alone.

Barrington's trial lasted two weeks in Clayton. He was convicted March 5, 1904, and sentenced to be hanged. He appealed and the appeal was pending in the supreme court until January 31 last, when that tribunal affirmed the judgment of the trial court.

Miss Jennie Matthews of Lansing, Mich., interested herself nearly two years ago in Barrington's behalf, and since has been furnishing him with money to pay his laundry, barber, newspaper and sundry other bills. She also furnished his cell, which resembles a small parlor. Barrington always has dressed in broadcloth since entering the jail. He has been a troublesome prisoner to the jail authorities and lasted for more than 30 days before Christmas as a protest against the jail fare.

EIGHTEEN HUNDRED MEN IN THE MINE IT IS ON FIRE

Terrible Catastrophe In The Coal Regions Of Courrieres District France.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, March 10.—A terrible catastrophe occurred at a coal mine in the Courrieres district. An explosion of gas killed many miners and three chambers of the mine are on fire. The number of the victims is not known, but eighteen hundred miners descended into the pit this morning.

A dispatch from Lens says the rumor is circulating that there were over a thousand men killed, but there is nothing to indicate that the number is correct, as not a single man has been taken from the pit.

MONUMENT FOR THE NEGLECTED RUMSEY

Memory of Steamboat Inventor to Be Perpetuated by Maryland and West Virginia.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Shepherdstown, W. Va., March 10.—After more than a century of neglect the memory of James Rumsey, inventor of the steamboat, is about to be appropriately honored. Preliminary action has been taken looking toward the erection of a monument in this place to the memory of Rumsey. The West Virginia legislature has appropriated $1,750 toward the cost of the monument and additional cost will be asked of Maryland, of which state Rumsey was a native. It was at Shepherdstown, December 3, 1787, that Rumsey gave his first public exhibition of the steamboat, and then, for the first time in the history of the world, as his champions claim, a boat propelled by steam moved against the current. This test was witnessed by General William Drake and General Horatio Gates, both of whom were residents of this country. It is on the cliffs overlooking that part of the Potomac where the experiment was so successfully performed that it is now proposed to erect a monument to the memory of the inventor.

JOHN R. WALSH IS GIVEN A HEARING

Preliminary Steps in Trial of Irregular Financier Were Taken Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, March 10.—The case of John R. Walsh, president of the defunct Chicago National bank which closed its doors Dec. 18, 1905, was given a preliminary hearing in the federal court today. Mr. Walsh will be tried on charges of violating the national banking laws in making false returns to the comptroller of the currency and of converting to his own use without proper authority, funds of the bank amounting to $2,000,000.

SENATE ADMITS ONE NEW STATE

Oklahoma And Indian Territory Merged Into A Single Commonwealth.

ARIZONA-NEW MEXICO IS LEFT OUT

Roosevelt's Recommendations In The Matter Are Ignored But Measure Has Yet To Pass House Before Becoming Law.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, March 10.—The statehood bill, with Arizona and New Mexico eliminated, passed the senate Friday evening by a vote of 37 to 35. Oklahoma and Indian Territory are to be admitted into the union as a single state, to be known as Oklahoma, under the provisions of the emasculated measure, which now goes back to the house for concurrence or non-concurrence. Thus has ended, as far as the upper branch of congress is concerned, one of the last of the notable fights over making states out of territories that ever will agitate the country.

Previous to the adoption of the amendment removing the Arizona-New Mexico joint statehood feature, the Foraker amendment providing for the referendum as to those territories had been adopted by a vote of 42 to 28.

All the democrats with the exception of Senator Clarke of Arkansas, who was paired against the position of his party, voted to strike from the bill as it came from the house all reference to Arizona and New Mexico. The republicans who voted with the democrats were Alger and Burrows of Michigan, Bulkeley of Connecticut, Carter of Montana, Flint and Perkins of California, Foraker of Ohio, Gallinger of New Hampshire, Hansbrough of North Dakota, Heyburn of Idaho, Scott of West Virginia, and Spooner of Wisconsin, twelve in all.

Urgents Favor Bill.

For the second time within the last two years the senate refused to follow the lead set by the house in enacting statehood legislation recommended by the president. Last session when the joint statehood bill was passed by the senate it provided for the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory as one state and of New Mexico as another, the senate striking from the bill at that time all reference to Arizona. The bill went back to the house, where it remained until the adjournment of congress without any action being taken upon it.

The bill passed by the senate Friday goes to the house, where the insurgents will make an effort to have the senate amendments agreed to without the reference of the bill to committee. They fear that should the bill reach the committee on territories it will be kept there until the end of this congress a year hence, rather than risk a fight with the senate. The insurgents claim that if the house is given an opportunity to vote on the senate amendments they will be accepted.

The passage of the bill by the senate does not end the fight. Statehood contests are always important and hard fought. Few bills have been before congress in recent years which have awakened the degree of interest shown in this measure. The debates in both houses on the subject filled the galleries, and few absentees were recorded when the votes were taken.

Seventy-two of the ninety senators voted Friday, four more were present who did not vote because they were paired, and fourteen were absent and paired. The galleries again were crowded, with all the aisles occupied, and upon the floor were a number of members of the house. For four hours the senate listened to ten-minute speeches, and hot shots were poured back and forth, not with the hope of changing a single vote, but to show the strength of the contending forces.

Foraker and Beveridge Clash.

The incident which created the most excitement was an exchange between Senator Beveridge of Indiana, chairman of the territories committee, having in charge the bill, and Senator Foraker of Ohio, the leader of the republican side of the forces opposing it. Senator Beveridge here made several ineffective attempts to read and have printed in the Congressional Record a large number of telegrams received from residents of Arizona urging the passage of the bill. Objection was made to each of his requests, but finally he read two of the more important messages.

Senator Foraker followed him. He held in his hand a batch of telegrams, saying he had received a number of dispatches from people in Arizona who oppose joint statehood. He stated that he had personally done nothing to inspire the telegrams, but intimated that he did not approve the methods resorted to by the friends of the bill to bring forth the deluge of telegrams, which had poured in upon Mr. Beveridge.

Quick as a flash Mr. Beveridge was upon his feet demanding to be heard. He said he had done nothing to gather the protests against the Foraker amendment and that the telegrams he had received represented a spontaneous outburst of indignation on the part of the citizens of Arizona. Mr. Foraker then read two dispatches received by Delegate Mark Smith of Arizona stating that the telegrams sent Mr. Beveridge had been for News for the Railroad Men.

North-Western Road

Charles La Follette, traveling passenger agent of the Big Four system, was a Janesville visitor this morning.

It is rumored in the yards that a bush fight between two well known railway employees is to be pulled on the sixteenth of the month. The arrangements are being kept secret.

The end of the cinder pit into which Miss Mary Fox fell Thursday evening is now guarded by an iron rail placed there yesterday. This is the deepest portion of the pit, being about eight or ten feet below the surface and it is a wonder that Miss Fox was not more seriously injured or killed by the fall, as the bottom of the pit is obstructed by timber and stone, forming a car-bumping post.

Locomotives number 600 and 702 arrived here last evening from the West Milwaukee shops, where they have been thoroughly overhauled. The two are for freight service on the Mineral Point division and the 600 was sent out this morning. Two other engines, the 603 and 612, were sent to the West Milwaukee shops this morning where they will undergo similar repairs. The 612, in charge of Engineer Armstrong of Milwaukee, hauled the 603.

William Dookey and McKinney are helping Engineer Handler Charles Neeson on the cinder pit.

Max Siebert, son of night foreman Siebert, has taken the position of night oil boy.

Harriman instructed Julius Kruttschnitt, director of maintenance and operation of his roads, to begin work immediately with a view to installing 2,342 miles of automatic electric block signals, which will cost nearly $3,000,000.

WORK AT SCENE OF BOXER RIOTS

JANESVILLE MAN RECEIVES LETTER FROM MISSIONARIES.

ARE HIS NEPHEW AND WIFE

The Two Now Located in City Where Missions Were Destroyed in Late Uprising.

Friend W. Ellis, 260 Center avenue, has received a letter from his nephew Emery W. Ellis and his wife, who are missionaries in China and are the recent victims of the Boxer riots and the prospect of another uprising similar to the late Boxer disturbance. The two have been transferred from the city to which they went more than two years ago when they began their work in the Flowery Kingdom. Their new field is one desolated by the Boxers and first occupied since then by them. Portions of the mission follow:

Lin Ching, via Tsing Tao and Shanghai, China, January 31, 1906.

"Dear Friends: While we were preparing our last letter, that of November 10th, the telegram came announcing the departure of Miss Susan B. Tallman, M. D., from San Francisco. Before we had finished sending out the letters, it was decided that the Tuckers and ourselves should come here to Lin Ching for the winter. So, in spite of the fact that we told you that we were 'settled' at Pang Chuang, this New Year season finds us 'settled' at Lin Ching. The coming of Dr. Tallman made it possible for the Doctors Tucker to be spared from Pang Chuang. The fact that medical work has not been resumed here at Lin Ching since Boxer days will make possible for them a larger opportunity for study, than would have been theirs with a crowded hospital at their door.

Distributing Center.
Lin Ching is a great distributing center on the Grand Canal about 50 miles southwest of Pang Chuang. It will be of interest to you to know something of this city, and we quote from Mr. Chao: "Lin Ching is a 'Chihli' Chou city, that is, has Hsien Districts—three in fact—under its supervision. Lin Ching is located in the extreme west of the Province of Shantung on the Wei river at the point where it is entered by the Grand Canal from the southeast. It is now some years since the canal proper has fallen into disuse. Lin Ching was an especially prosperous trading point during the period when tribute rice from the south was brought to Peking by the Grand Canal. The withdrawal of trade with the sending of the rice north by junks in the open sea, marked a decline in the prosperity of Lin Ching."

Its History.
During the protracted war of the Tai Ping Rebellion (1851-1865), Lin Ching was utterly desolated by the rebels. Once getting possession of the city, if Chinese reports are to be credited, the total population was exterminated without mercy, only a few scattered individuals, accidentally surviving. The native story goes that the Provincial Governor sent an official to investigate, and to report on the number destroyed. After superficial inquiry he proceeded to report a hundred thousand, but in the night he was alarmed by the wailing of the disembodied spirits until he had changed the figures in his report to read one million. A temple was erected in the city to the honor of the city official, two colonels, and distinguished citizens who perished with the people. To the present time the city wall surrounds a nearly empty space, the city having been built up outside the wall along the river to the southwest. The Mission Compound while standing was on the bank of the river in close proximity to the city."

What Might Be.
The work here at Lin Ching makes one very wishful for what might be. There has been no foreigner to live here since the Boxer year. Mr. Chao has lived at Pang Chuang and worked the field from there. The houses here were all destroyed in 1900, with the exception of this one Chinese building, in which we are living. There is a little handful of Christians, some of whom are, or have been, more or less lukewarm until the recent revival meetings. There is a street chapel but no real church building. They have no hospital and this is a city of fifty thousand. There is a region where people are two thousand to the square mile. There is no school for boys or girls, except as a teacher is found for a few weeks in the winter. On the other hand, there has been a remarkable interest shown in the "doctrine" and a large number of inquirers have come for instruction to the little group of native helpers, none of whom—with one exception—have had the advantage of the training of our Christian college at Tung Chou.

As to Exercise.
The need of exercise when we spend so much time over our books, takes us out for walks each day, often between six and seven in the morning. Some of the time it is very dark as we start out, but some of the time there is a beautiful big moon. One morning we went first to the river and found it full of ice, above the boat-bridge. The ice was very uneven and the uneven places caught the moonlight and changed it into sparkling radiance. To the one side of us were the boats with their tall black masts, and on the other, the boat-bridge with a solitary crosser, while across the twinkling ice in front were the white walls and curved roof of a temple. We were very early that morning, so we found very few stirrings, and in some places the gates shut, for, although the suburb has no wall, the streets have gates that completely shut off traffic. In some of these large gates we found small ones just large enough for us to get through, when they were open.

The Streets.
After we left the main streets we observed that the others were very much narrower, and even more crooked. We kept on walking "toward the morning" as we could see the beautiful tints in the sky above the one-story buildings, and finally came out on the bank of the old canal which was built in the days of Kublai Khan A. D., 1300. Other mornings we have explored temples, or gone out into the country, or over to the city proper. One thing it seems to me I shall never forget. Going down one of the dark, narrow streets, we came to a big gate that is set back from the street some twenty or thirty feet, with three or four stone steps leading up to it. There may be at that early hour a few on the street and so one or two energetic men are already stationed on the steps with food to sell. But the thing that always attracts my attention is the circle of ragged beggars. Up in a dark corner by the gate they have built a fire of a few sticks and some trash collected from the street, and here they hover over this fire, trying to keep warm until the sun comes up. An occasional blaze makes the shadows behind them deeper, but lights up their faces, their unkempt hair, the ragged sleeves of their garments, and their outstretched hands. Yours for Christ and China, EMERY W. ELLIS.

CONGRESS ACTS FOR RELIEF OF THE WEED

Passes An Emergency Measure To Help The Tobacco Handlers With Their Goods.

Washington, March 8.—The House of Representatives has passed the bill drawn by the commission of internal revenue for the relief of tobacco growers. Immediately after the house convened Mr. Dalzell, from the committee on Ways and Means, called up the bill and asked unanimous consent for its consideration. Mr. Dalzell noted the fact that this bill passed the house in the last congress and had been reported unanimously by the Ways and Means committee this session. "The purpose of the bill is to remove certain restrictions now existing upon the growers of tobacco in relation to its sale," he explained. "It was drawn by the commission of internal revenue and is approved by the treasury department." No one wishing to discuss the bill, it was passed without a dissenting vote.

While the provisions of this bill have been published in these dispatches, it may be worth while reproducing the measure as it passed the house. It reads as follows:

"Be it enacted, etc., That subdivision 9, of section 3244 of the U. S. revised statutes is hereby amended so as to read as follows: "Every person whose business it is to manufacture tobacco or snuff for himself, or who employs others to manufacture tobacco or snuff, whether such manufacture be by cutting, pressing, grinding, crushing, or rubbing of any raw or leaf tobacco, or otherwise preparing raw or leaf tobacco, or manufactured or partially manufactured tobacco or snuff, or the putting up for use or consumption of scraps, waste, clippings, stems, or deposits of tobacco, resulting from any process of handling tobacco, or by the working or preparation of leaf tobacco, tobacco stems, scraps, clippings, or waste, by sifting, twisting, screening or any other process, shall be regarded as a manufacturer of tobacco. Provided, That unstemmed tobacco in the natural leaf and not manufactured or altered in any manner shall not be subject to any internal-revenue tax or charge of any kind whatsoever, and it shall be lawful for any person to buy and sell such unstemmed tobacco in the leaf without payment of tax of any kind: Provided further, that any person who sells natural leaf tobacco to manufacturers of tobacco, snuff, or cigars shall be deemed and considered a dealer in leaf tobacco and become subject to all the provisions, rules, and regulations of subsection 6, of section 3244, U. S. revised statutes, and further, shall be subject to all the provisions of section 3300, U. S. revised statutes, and of sections 3359 and 3361, U. S. R. S. And provided further, That farmers and growers of tobacco may sell leaf tobacco of their own growth and raising to manufacturers of tobacco, snuff, or cigars without being considered leaf dealers or manufacturers of tobacco and shall not be subject to the sections of the law thereof above named."

FALSEHOOD IN

ITS REIGN IN THE 17TH CENTURY DESCRIBED

BY PROF. THEO. L. WRIGHT

In A Lecture Before the Janesville Art League at High School Building Yesterday.

"To be effective, and enduring architecture must be honest in construction," said Prof. Theodore Lyman Wright in his lecture on "The Art of the Decadence," delivered before the Janesville Art League at the science room of the high school yesterday afternoon. "It must be honest in construction. The good builder will so create that the good observer may see how the building is made—what the strength is that lifts the beams, the solidity of the columns, the soaring power of the arched vaults. In gazing upon the barren, hearted timber, the solid stone, we may feel that the constructor was a man who built for his own and coming generations. It is the kind of truth that puts us in sympathy with the builder. To look at the rough stone is to remember the quarry worker; to look at the place where the rough meets the smooth stone is to remember the mason. The place where the smooth stone meets the pattern of acanthus or maple leaf or the grape-vine tells us of the craftsman. Into these patterns the old medieval artisan worked his own heart and soul, with the result that what he did was much nearer to him and is immeasurably nearer to us than the frequent modern forms moulded in artificial concrete or machine-cut from the stone.

Building Must Have Expression.
"A second variety of architectural truth is revealed to us when the architect so creates that the building expresses what it was made for. As we pass certain homes all of us, in glancing at the buildings, are instinctively certain that there is good home life within. About others we are not so certain. The front windows are not too broad, lead the about be mistaken for a millinery shop. Churches, with their high towers and lofty gables, let it be known that the human heart rises within their walls. But the court house and the city hall are quite likely to be reminiscent of the Roman imperial structures. They say to us quite plainly: 'We are not houses of God but abodes of justice and the law.' Your Janesville post-office is a beautiful reminder of the classicism of Rome. It tells what government ought to be and does for its people. The outside, at first, gives one the impression that the inside is one big corridor. But on nearer approach we learn that a sin has been committed against the truth—that the outside does not tell what is going on inside. Across the beautiful front window we see the great, diagonal line of a stairway. That is the sin against the perfect straightforwardness, on the part of the builder.

Truth in Ornament.
"Thirdly, there is the truth with which a building wears its adornments and superficial ornaments. In the late Renaissance it was an inherent joyfulness, but the novelty of display which actuated the builders, in consequence, pompous, arrogant, often passed for grandeur and splendor. When we look upon a building we wish to be impressed, not with the owner's wealth but with his appreciation of a line of beauty. The truth of architecture was exemplified by the Greeks when with marble they threw up perpendicular lines in columns and across them beams and architraves, covering space by a simple and common-sense method. Yet, as with all good things, this architecture was the product of centuries—the years intervening from 700 to 300 B. C. That other order—the Gothic, with its upward sweeping line of grouped columns and its vaulted roofs, forming the skeleton for which the stained glass and the carving were the flesh—was also a slow development. The Greek system with its column and beam and the Gothic with its pier and groin vault—these two are the only perfected systems. All others are deviations or degenerations.

Entrance of Untruth.
Untruth stepped in when the world thought it could serve two masters—God and Mammon. The renaissance, or rebirth, was a kind of double birth. The highest and most exalted of men, in most instances, were precisely those who thought they could hold true both to the old religion and the new paganism. The packing of useless columns on religious buildings, the decorations with the other things, the pedants found in Rome, shows us the confusion that prevailed. These efforts resulted in no new combinations of beauty—in texture, light and shadow, or line, but only in the expression of memories—the calling up of the great old days of classic Rome and religious Greece. In the first stage of the renaissance the effort was to reproduce the old Roman buildings with freedom and delight in detail. Later the strict rules of Vitruvius held sway, and the rococo and baroque styles which characterized the renaissance were the result of a reaction against the stiffness of the Vitruvian standards. Pictures of the church of Maria della Pace in Rome and other buildings were presented on the screen and certain aspects, such as the introduction of curved lines where straight ones had formerly prevailed and the at once rapid, pretty, playful, fascinating, and repellent over-ornamentation of interiors, were pointed out. Architecture had become a hurly-burly of strange angles, broken lines, and cornices upside down. Even the columns themselves began to squirm and twist.

Voluptuousness in Marble.
The statues of saints no longer represented emaciated men and women burdened with sorrow, but creatures who were well known in the palaces. Bernini was an artist who loved the great Michelangelo and imitated him, imitated only his faults of over-exaggeration, of muscle and strength. Bernini was only an actor—historical rather than true. He tried to present effects he had never felt. He put too much agitated pathos into what he made. Things which are legitimate in the theatre may not always be attempted in stone. It is permissible for the actor who has only one moment to create an effect which the spectator must likewise catch in a moment, to over-emphasize. But on the enduring marble we are compelled to look for years. Apollo's pursuit of Daphne who is just turning into a laurel tree as he clasps her, is a good theme, perhaps, for the stage, or for music, or even for the painter but it is hardly a subject for monumental treatment (as in the case of Bernini's marble group). The tombs of the Medici at Florence, into which were introduced all the rare stones, and different colored marbles known to the world with the perfectly evident design of displaying the occupants' mastery of the wealth of the earth, were remarked upon as typical of the futility of the attempt to be vainglorious and voluptuous, and at the same time follow the simple ways of the Master in Galilee. In conclusion the speaker read Browning's poem on this epoch, "The Bishop Orders His Tomb."

DELIVERIES NEARLY FINISHED FOR YEAR

Reports That the Last Years Crop Will Soon Be All In The Purchasers Hands.

The receiving of the tobacco crop has now got so far along that the coming week will see nearly all delivered and the grower in possession of the proceeds of his tobacco, says the Edgerton Journal. Seldom if ever before was the crop out of the hands of the farmers in this state so early and so to the credit of the packers; that they have so promptly responded to the pressure of growers for early delivery, even to their great inconvenience and expense. There are plenty of storehouses yet filled to the roof with bundle leaf that will require some weeks to assort. But with the howl of the farmers' appeals this work can be done more leisurely.

The market is eager for anything of a leaf nature offered for sale, whether new or old tobacco. It is quickly snapped up. Two small local packings of '05 have been disposed of during the week—Madden Bros., 300 cases, sold to Julius Marquissee, and 225 cases put up by C. L. Scofield at Oregon went to Well & Culton.

The strenuous condition of the scrap tobacco market is reflected somewhat locally. Every pound of filler or low grade leaf is hunted closely and prices are far beyond anything ever before realized. The shipments out of storage reach about 400 cases for the week from this market to all points. Fifty-one cars were received from outside points for warehouse handling.

JUNE BRINGS THE RINGLING CIRCUS

Baraboo Showmen Will Take Their Big Caravan To Chicago Next Month—Coming Here in June.

Next month Ringling Bros' circus will open its season at the Coliseum, Chicago, and almost simultaneously the Barnum & Bailey show will open at the Madison Square garden, New York. For many years these two great organizations have followed this procedure, one in the west and the other in the east. Some time in June Janesville will have an opportunity to pass upon the new features which the Baraboo showmen have prepared for the entertainment of the multitude in 1906. As in the past, it is likely that one or two men from here will join the big caravan this year.

PLAYED BRODHEAD TO A STANDSTILL

Janesville High School Basketball Team Won Overwhelming Victory—Varsity Freshmen Tonight.

Janesville High school's basketball team decisively defeated the Brodhead five in a game played before a large gallery of spectators in the Brodhead opera-house last evening, rolling up a score of 51 points to their opponents' 20. The first half ended with the points standing 21 to 10. Morse and Lee were forwards for Janesville; Bennett played at center; and London and Wright were the guards. Tonight the same team will meet the Wisconsin University freshmen at the local gymnasium and the fastest game of the season is anticipated. The contest will begin at eight o'clock.

COLD KILLS THE GERM.

Lieut. Perry Says There Are No Bald Heads in the Arctic Region. The people who come back from Klondike testify to the fact that no native bald heads are there. The evidence that the cold climate kills the germs that eat hair off at the root. Lieut. Perry, who went to the Arctic Regions, gives the same evidence. Newbro's Herpicide has the same effect as the cold climate. It kills the germ that eats the hair off at the roots, and the hair grows again. Herpicide is the first hair remedy built upon the principle of destroying the germ that eats the hair off. Its phenomenal sale demonstrates the correctness of the scalp germ theory. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

STANLEY D. TALLMAN
MAKES STATEMENT.

To the electors of the city of Janesville:
My formal announcement of candidacy for the office of city attorney on the republican ticket at the coming primaries was made through these columns March 3d.

At this time I desire to make a further statement.
If I am honored by nomination and election to this office, I most faithfully promise to you: I will not make the office of city attorney a political headquarters nor will I make myself an ex-officio member of the common council. I will simply discharge the duties of the office as defined by our city charter.

I represent no class, no creed, no political ring, no lobby, no vain imaginations.
I most respectfully solicit the support of every voter in the city.
Yours very truly,
STANLEY D. TALLMAN.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier. In nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purposes. Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines, and carries them out of the system. Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth, and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh. All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from the continued use of them, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

There is every reason to believe that this famous horticulturist, Luther Burbank, had a large supply of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges at his disposal.

PLAN TOUCHES A POPULAR CHORD

Opening Of Gazette Diamond Contest Arouses Much Interest.

VOTERS ASK MANY QUESTIONS.

Diamonds Will Be On Display Monday Evening. Are You Voting?

This morning an official ballot box was installed in the Gazette office to receive the ballots that are to decide who will win the Gazette trophies.

The diamonds are being mounted and will be placed on display in Hall and Sayles' window on Monday evening, and the American Flag Co. of Rochester, N. Y., has the order for a pair of "Old Glories" such as any society, lodge or organization of the state might be proud to win.

The diamonds, or first trophies as they will be known, are beauties of the first water. The ladies' ring is set with a stone weighing $\frac{3}{4}$ and 1-64 carat, and the setting in the gentlemen's ring is a $\frac{1}{2}$ carat diamond.

Throughout all the morning there have been numerous inquiries as to the project. How will we vote? When must we go to cast our ballots? What is required of the voter? These and more like them were the burden of inquiry.

To all of them the answer was easily found. Simply clip the ballots, write in the names of those of your friends, or neighbors, or of any member of your own family whom you would like to help win one of the rings; then mail these ballots or send them to the Gazette office, and the bulletin of the returns will tell you how the balloting is progressing.

Do this much and your votes will place your favorites in nomination, and that may lead to many more votes when their names appear in the bulletin. Everything points to a fine good-natured campaign, and the Gazette is going to leave nothing undone to guarantee absolute fairness and squareness to every one interested. Every town and village in the country will have its candidate before the contest is many days old and though it will take some real campaigning to win the trophies will be found well worth the effort. Clip the ballot now.

REGULATIONS.

The voting in the Gazette Diamond Contest will be by ballot, clipped from regular issues of the Daily and Semi-Weekly Gazette and by voting certificates issued with subscription receipts to the Gazette.

Ballots clipped from the Gazette will count one vote each for the persons named thereon when voted in conformity with these regulations within one week of date of issue.

Voting certificates will bear no time limit and may be retained and voted at any time during the contest.

The polls will close at 7 o'clock p. m. Saturday, April 14.

— FORTY YEARS AGO —

Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday, March 10, 1906.—Third Ward.—Our carrier boy for the Third ward is sick and another, unacquainted with the route, put on last night, who may have overlooked some of the subscribers. If so, this is the explanation.

Water Witch Festival.—On next Thursday evening the eleventh annual festival of the Water Witch Engine company takes place at the Myers house, in this city. By reference to a list of managers, we see it embraces the names of gentlemen who never do things in halves, and this party may therefore be confidently looked to as being of no ordinary merit. Those who attend will no doubt have a pleasant time.

Put on the Stamps.—Our attention has been called to the fact that a large number of receipts on the American Express Company have no revenue stamps attached thereto, and that it will be necessary to put on the stamps immediately in order to escape prosecution. We are informed that many of our business men have been guilty of this neglect, as such oversight is natural even in the hurry of the moment. Both individuals and the express company judge of the interest which is felt in the great improvement by all classes of persons hereafter, and they don't mean to know of any such word as fail. Come down next summer and see us and take a ride on our steamboat. Janesville Gazette.

Certainly, we shall accept your invitation; but can't you give us some information in regard to the different lines of boats? No monopoly you know, should ever be allowed to control the majestic Rock—Daily Wisconsin.

The people will take care that no monopolies seize upon this great improvement. You can trust them for that. As to the different lines of boats, we cannot answer your inquiries as particularly as we would be glad to, in consequence of our not having received the time tables which are to govern their movements during the coming season. We are authorized to say, however, by the officers of the St. Louis, Janesville & Green Bay Transportation company that, whenever the editors of the Wisconsin wish to take a pleasure trip from Lake Superior to the Father of Waters, through the most fertile valley that lies out of doors, one of their floating palaces shall be at their disposal free of charge, furnished with an excellent band of music, the cuisine all right, the company shall be comprised of the youth, beauty, fashion and intelligence of Old Rock, and all the other little pleasures that are nameless but necessary for the enjoyment of such an excursion, shall be there. We shall hold you to your promise, gentlemen.

Home-seekers' Excursion to the Northwest, West and Southwest. Via the North-Western line. Excursion tickets at greatly reduced rates are on sale to the territory indicated above. Says President Roosevelt

"It is of incalculable consequence to the man himself that he should be sober and temperate, and it is of even more consequence to his wife and his children, for it is a hard and cruel fact that in this life of ours the sins of the fathers are visited most heavily upon those whose welfare should be his one special care."—President Roosevelt to the Miners at Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

SUITS
Concerning spring styles for women

From the interest that has been manifested, we're of the opinion that this will be the greatest ready-to-wear suit season in many years.

So far we're selling three suits to one sold last year; and the moral is this: if you're going to get a new suit this spring, you'd better get it early before assortments are broken and while there's time to make any necessary alterations without haste and without delay. You've nothing to lose by buying early; styles are set.

In accordance with the present good-times tendency toward better goods, we bought very liberally of suits ranging from $12.50 to $35 while in the New York market recently, and many of them are now in stock.

Some of the suits are made with pony-coats; but most of them have short e-ton effects, extending to the waist-line, and finished with silk or self-grildes—a similarity of lines, you see; but many ways of trimming give variety.

There are probably more panama suits than any other kind—hard-twisted panama cloths that are light to carry, cool to wear, and quick to shed dust.

The panamas come mainly in solid colors—black, navy, reseda, red rose, Alice-blue and gray; but there are broken checks in gray, a few in blue, and some suits of cream panama with black cross-bars that form hairline checks.

You are invited to call and get posted.

EXAGGERATED STORY COMES FROM MADISON

Claim That Edgerton Is To Be Quarantined for Smallpox Is Denied By That City.

Reports from Madison to the effect that smallpox has been discovered in their midst, due to patients contracting it in Edgerton, led the city health officer of Madison to consult with city officials with an idea of declaring a quarantine on Edgerton. This brought forth an emphatic denial from Edgerton that the disease was as prevalent in the city as ascribed in the assurance that they had but five cases of smallpox and the situation was well in hand. Varioloid has existed in Edgerton since early in the winter. It is stated that recently a severe case was discovered in one of the warehouses and that the rest of the cases have been mild. Dr. Q. O. Sutherland, member of the state board of health, said that the report from Edgerton made to him did not show any great danger and it is probable that Madison has become unduly excited over the news.

Fine Rainbow Trout: Landlord John F. Sweeney of the Grand hotel received from the state fish hatchery this week a consignment of about a dozen fine large rainbow trout. They have been installed in the aquarium and have elicited many words of admiration from the passers-by. Several of the fish are beautifully marked and are over twelve inches long.

Judgment for $20: In Justice Reeders' court today a judgment for $20 for the plaintiff was handed down in the action of James Sheridan vs. Coyne Bros. brought to recover on a wholesale liquor bill.

With Parent's Consent: A marriage license was issued today to William H. Arnold and Daisy Grace Hudson, both of Milton. Miss Hudson is under eighteen years of age and the parent's consent accompanies the application.

St. Patrick's Day is to Be Celebrated
St. Patrick's day is to be observed as usual by the Irish people of Janesville. High mass will be celebrated at St. Patrick's church at 9:30, at which a sermon will be preached on some of the virtues of St. Patrick. In the evening a supper will be served at the Assembly hall at 8:30, after which a program will be given, consisting of speeches, songs, stories, etc., all being under the auspices of the A. O. H. and ladies' auxiliary. All friends of the society are cordially invited.

Beautiful Granite Display
At the large display room of Mr. Geo. Breese, West Milwaukee street, can be seen the largest and finest stock of granite ever shown in Janesville. The stock embraces all the new designs in red Wausau and Barre granite, and makes most beautiful showings. Each piece has been personally selected, which is a guarantee that every monument is perfect in every detail. A large business has been built up by this firm, extending many miles in all directions from Janesville. Special attention is given to the lettering, and only the most competent workmen are employed.

MORTUARY NEWS.

John Douglas King
The remains of the late John Douglas King of Washington, D. C., arrived here at one o'clock this afternoon over the St. Paul road and were taken to the chapel in Oak Hill cemetery. Marshall P. Richardson of the Church of Christ, Scientist, conducted funeral services and interment was made in Oak Hill. The pallbearers were R. M. Bostwick, Jr., E. T. Foote, David Watt, Clarence S. Jackson, F. C. Cook, Charles Patterson and David Watt. Many loving friends were present at the obsequies and paid tribute to the deceased.

Alpheus Weaver
All that is mortal of the late Alpheus Weaver was laid at rest in Oak Hill cemetery yesterday afternoon. The funeral services were held at two in the afternoon from the home on Oak Hill avenue and Rev. J. W. Laughlin was the officiating clergyman. The pallbearers were George Woodruff, Charles Gramke, W. Green and Mr. Ayer.

Sunday Dinner

PUBLIC MEETING OF ALL THE CANDIDATES

Project On Foot To Call Meeting To Hear City Attorney Candidates Talk.

There has been considerable talk about the city relative to a proposed public meeting at which the three candidates for city attorney will be asked to appear and explain what they consider the duties of the city attorney to be and state their qualifications for the office. The talk took definite form this morning in a meeting held in an office at which it was decided to invite the three candidates to make such a presentation of facts. There is much ignorance as to just what constitutes the duties of the city attorney and it is thought that such a debate as proposed would be instructive to the voters at large. Should one of the candidates accept the invitation it is probable that the other two would also take part in the proposed novel debate.

SYLVESTER A. LONG

Sylvester A. Long, the great Dayton, Ohio, lecturer, will give all men in Janesville an opportunity to hear his noted lecture to men only, subject—"Drop It!" at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow, Sunday, at 3 p. m. This is the only open Sunday Mr. Long has had this winter and the Janesville association was fortunate enough to secure it. Admission is free and no collection will be taken. It is hoped that standing room will be at a premium. Special music will be arranged for the hour. No man should miss this rare treat.

STATE NOTES

William Moreland, aged 25 years, deaf and dumb, was killed by a train on the Burlington tracks near Prairie du Chien.

The loss occasioned by the Neenah Paper company in Wednesday morning's fire is now placed at $52,000, as follows: Building, $8,500; machinery, $35,700; fixtures, $2,200, and stock, $5,100. The plant is insured for $175,000.

PHOENIX PARK, DUBLIN, MURDERS RECALLED BY CATHOLIC NUN'S DEATH

Dublin, March 10.—The murders of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke in the Phoenix Park in 1882 has been recalled by the death of a nun, Sister Magdalen Kirwan, aged 35, superioress of the Convent of Mercy in this city. The deceased was a cousin of Mr. Burke, and through her own choice assisted in the religious investigations in Kilmainham prison. Prior to their execution she succeeded in making one of them, named Brady, forgive James Carey, who had become informer, and was afterwards shot in South Africa.

HAVE LITTLE HOPES OF HAVING A TEAM

University Students Lose all Hope Of Being A Factor In Football Again.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., March 10.—While the decision of the "big nine" intercollegiate conference to retain football was received with some satisfaction at the University of Wisconsin, it created no apparent manifestation of joy, for weeks ago it was settled in the minds of the Badger students that this institution would have no prominent part in the game next season. The close of last year's schedule left the Badgers without a veteran of more than one season eligible for next year, and the prospect of little money and large restrictions has caused some of the best material to leave the university. The impossibility of getting the services of Phil King and Eddie Holt, to coach the team has become another wet blanket on Wisconsin football enthusiasm. It is conceded here that the race next fall will be between Chicago and Minnesota with their veteran faculty coaches and Michigan with the professional coach, Yost, whom the conference allowed to remain to complete his contract. Dr. Charles McCarthy, a former star on the Brown university eleven, and now legislative librarian and statistician of Wisconsin, with connection with the state university faculty, will probably be the Badger coach, as he stands alone among the possible faculty coaches here. He was assistant coach to Arthur Curtis three years ago when the experiment of the graduate coach system was tried.

Basketball is the most popular sport today at Madison. This game is five years old here, but until the present season it has been impossible to get students to look at a game. Friday night, when Wisconsin defeated Chicago, fully 1,500 spectators were present and the enthusiasm approached in earnestness that of an intercollegiate football match.

President Van Hise has succeeded in getting the students to adopt his proposals in the athletic association. These proposals were in the main the placing of the financial matters of the association in the hands of the directors involving the expenditure of money; also the restricting of the election of members of the board of directors, so that the offices could not be monopolized by the athletes and scholars could be elected. William Berke, veteran all-western football tackle, was elected president of the association by unanimous vote of the students.

ROARING MELODRAMA "JEKYLL AND HYDE"

As Dramatized From Robert Louis Stephenson's Story Expressly For Edward Waldman.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" as dramatized for and presented by Edward Waldman and his company has "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" over the ropes and gasping for breath. Twenty nights wouldn't be a circumstance. If the histrionic "Hyde" of Mr. Waldman could only wobble to the front of the stage with his collection of catsup bottles and exclaim in those husky accents of terrifying wheeziness: "Boys and Girls, look at me and leave the dope alone!" and then have the curtain run down for good, it would all be so much more simple and there would be no occasion for the young ladies in the most expensive seats to giggle during those weird and soul-harrowing moments when the noble Jekyll is grabbing frantically for his own identity and invariably making an awful fumble. Years ago a well beloved writer of the choicest English fiction conceived and placed on paper a wonderful allegory of the perpetual struggle of one man's—of every man's—good and evil natures to gain the mastery. He visualized these two natures into actual separate beings of flesh and blood. Great actors essayed to present this remarkable story on the stage. When they were done with it other thespians took it up until, at last, it came to suffer a fate worse than that of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The audience at the Myers theatre last night was not a large one. The gallery boys smacked their lips during the brief love scenes. They laughed out loud at the pusillanimous "Mr. Utterson" of Hal Plumb and some of the other tragically serious characters. As for "Bridget," she might have been quite good if she had not forgotten certain portions of her lines.

Y. M. C. A. MEET WILL BE IN BELOIT NEXT

State Organization Will Hold its Thirty First Convention Next Week.

The thirty-first annual state convention of the Wisconsin Young Men's Christian association will be held at Beloit from March 15 to 18. State Senator John M. Whitehead is the president of the organization and C. A. Gault is the president of the Beloit association. Among the speakers who will be at the meeting will be Dr. W. O. Carrier, president of Carroll college; State Senator John M. Whitehead; Augustus Nash, of Cleveland; and V. W. Helm, general secretary at Tokio, Japan. One of the features will be the fifth annual state field meet held in the Beloit college gymnasium on March 15. J. B. Modisett of Milwaukee will act as one of the timers at the meet. A number of the members of the Janesville association are entered in the different events and a large delegation from this city will attend the sessions.

SPEAKS ON THE WOOL QUESTIONS

Mr. Bullard Tells of the Growth of the Industry Throughout the World, at Present Time

At a recent meeting of the farmers' institute Elmer Bullard gave the following talk on the wool situation in the United States:

"A great many causes have been assigned for the exceptionally high prices for mutton and wool the past year. A broad minded view of the situation leads one to the conclusion that the causes are inadequate supply and excessive demand. The whole country is in a high state of prosperity, and with very few exceptions, the same conditions are obtaining in other industries. The fact is that the purchasing powers of the people have increased so rapidly that the production has not been able to keep pace with them. There are ample reasons why there is little fear that the live mutton trade will not be overdone. Some of the reasons are only local to this country, but there are others which are worldwide and bearing on the future of the industry. The fact has been stated that the supply of mutton in the world is small. For the last twenty years or more it has been on the decrease, and while the supply has been falling off, the demand for sheep at the various trade centers proves conclusively that the consumption of mutton is increasing. Not only this, but the demand for wool appears to be on the increase. Of course, the last few years have been years of prosperity. All over the world the use of wool is always increased at such periods. There has been a general fear expressed that the number of lambs which have been sent into the live American markets for slaughter would result in there being an actual shortage in the domestic stock. There have been more ewes taken out for breeding purposes than ever before, and there have been grave doubts expressed since the season for buying ewes closed, that the world's crop of lambs would not be sufficient to make up the shortage. Then, too, there were more ewes slaughtered within the last year than had been at any similar period. Much the same condition seems to exist in the Argentine, where there is complaint that the supply is falling off. There seems to be no danger of a great surplus of sheep in this country in the near future until the territory east of the Mississippi river carries much larger supplies of breeding sheep and produces much larger crops of lambs than are to be anticipated in the next few years. There is no danger of very low prices for sheep and wool. The territory west of the Mississippi has about reached the limit of its nearly production. This year's big marketing shows that many range owners have taken advantage of high prices. From the most reliable reports, some sections of Montana have been more thoroughly cleaned of sheep this year than any time in the past decade. At the recent meeting in Denver, the big wool men of the country exchange views and generally concurred in the prosperity of the country for the wool industry, and claim in most of the northern producing states a portion of the 1906 clip is already contracted and some clips of a choice class have been taken out at 25 to 35c, more at 25 than the higher figures. The sheep business in Texas is now distinctly of a reminiscent character. It would take years to stock the pastures of Texas with sheep to the extent that they were populated a dozen years ago. Russia has more sheep than any other country in Europe. South America has the largest flocks this side of the Atlantic. Australia has more sheep than any other country in the world. The United States has about 62,000,000 sheep; Canada and Mexico about 15,000,000 head; Australia about 125,000,000; South America something like 90,000,000; the Central America republic 10,000,000; Europe 220,000,000; Asia 80,000,000; and Africa about 60,000,000. The world's flock totals something like 644,000,000. Our wools are termed 'super wools' and should be handled with great care and kept free of chaff, dust and dirt. Take special care to make them attractive. Indifferent handling is sure to lose the grower money. There are some 32 different grades of wool known to the trade, and are made according to the fineness or coarseness of the fibre. Then we have the letters, such as A's and B's, Supers, also the figures, such as 40's, 46's, 60's and 70's, the same as your spools of silk and thread are lettered and numbered; for the different grades and qualities in the manufacturing industries. Montana is the leading state in number of sheep and being credited with 22,000,000 pounds of wool; Oregon, second with 19,000,000; Wyoming and Idaho following third in the list with 16,000,000. All other states following, Wisconsin coming in with 5,000,000; Rhode Island and Maryland at the foot, Maryland with 63,000 and Rhode Island with 37,000. The average shrinkage of the United States wool clip is recorded at 60 per cent, leaving 40 per cent of scoured wool or cleaned, ready for the manufacturer's use, to the hundred pounds in the grease. The state of Colorado has a record of 69 per cent shrinkage and in speaking of the conditions in the San Luis valley of Colorado which has become one of the greatest sheep feeding sections of the country, the valley has been a little overdone this winter and some people not familiar with the circumstances may get the wrong idea about it. Last winter there were fed in the valley about 175,000 lambs. This winter the number will run close to 375,000. That is a very large increase, and too large for a spring so suddenly. The sheep feeders last winter made all kinds of money. They were the old experienced sheep feeders who understood just how to handle them. Last fall there were hundreds of novices in the business who plunged in. They consisted of preachers, dentists, doctors and that class of men who watch the market instead of the sheep and of course they are not going to make much money at the business. They have to learn and generally people who are learning anything, have to pay for their schooling. Contracts to supply the government with woolen clothing are open at the different quartermasters' offices until March 6th for 15,000 white woolen blankets, 100,000 suits of light weight cotton and woolen underwear, 100 pairs of white woolen gloves, 33,000 yards of olive drab flannel shirting, subject to a 20 per cent increase. By observation of the different nationalities in the live stock industry, we find the Scotch and their descendants excel in sheep and wool, with the English and Welsh their close competitors, Americans following, although there are exceptions to the rule."

Beware of Ointments For Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reliable physicians as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by J. C. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, contains no mercury, but is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine, it is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by J. C. Cheney & Co. Testimonials from cured catarrh sufferers, price 75c per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A Woman's Gratitude

"For more than a year I had been a sufferer, completely broken down. I had not slept but two or three hours any night for weeks. I had such awful misery in my head, and oh, I was so irritable. I could not depend upon my judgment, and my memory was failing. I realized that I was losing my mind, and I thought the grave, or worse, the asylum, would be my doom. My doctor said my case was beyond the reach of medicine. I went to a druggist and told him my condition. He recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine; he was pretty sure it would help me, so I bought a bottle. That night I took a table spoonful, and fell asleep in a few minutes, the first rest I had in weeks, and oh, I will never forget that sweet sleep while I live. I have continued taking it, and sleep like a baby, and gain rapidly."

"His face lighted up. 'True enough.' After a moment's hesitation he added: 'Very well, consider me your protector and cook. Baker is in for it.' And he went away filled with a delicious sense of having suddenly been honored above his desert."

Ann was accustomed to men who flew to her bidding, but this instant victory over the big rancher pleased her unaccountably, and she laughed softly, acknowledging a glow of confidence and relief in the promise of his presence.

Out by the corral the tramping and snorting of excited ponies could be heard mingled with the muttered oaths of the men as they hurriedly roped and saddled. The sky was darkening rapidly, and the pillar of smoke already glowed like a brazen tower. It rose straight into the air for hundreds of feet, then spread away into a long, level cloud, showing that the wind had not yet begun to blow the flame.

At last the men were all mounted and, with a final command from the boss, spurred away into the gloom, complaining, weary, but faithful. Raymond felt a little foolish as he faced the liverman from Wallace.

"No, I'm not going—at least not until I get Barnett's people fixed for the night. You'll have to bunk in the tool shed, I reckon."

"That's all right. I'll curl down close to my team. I don't want to run any risks with a lot of roughs like that Williams gang cavorting around. They had just liquor enough aboard to make 'em reckless. I'd advise you to look out for old Turkey Egg there. He has it in for you."

Raymond was unimpressed. "They're halfway to Wallace by this time, and besides, Speck is a big bluff anyway. We're rid of him forever."

"Well, all is, when you meet him next you pull first," the little man replied very seriously.

Raymond walked slowly toward the house, filled with a guilty joy. Instead of a night of hard riding and laborious wet bag swinging he had given himself the pleasure of sitting in conversation with a beautiful and cultured girl. "I haven't earned this," he admitted. "I don't deserve it. It's too good to be true, but Barnett will approve. Anyhow, I'm going to enjoy it while I can."

Nevertheless, this sense of being a sneak and a cheat threw over him a gloomy and preoccupied air which vexed Ann, who began to question him very much as she would have done had she discovered unusual powers in her coachman. "How do you happen to be out here, Mr. Raymond?"

He replied bluntly: "I don't know. I came here six years ago because I hadn't any trade, and the cattle business was attractive, and I've been here ever since."

"But you are wasting your time and talents."

For a moment he meditated a jocular reply, but at last gravely said: "I know it. I've felt like a dough boy for some time, and—well, I'm just about decided to try my luck up at the big camp. I wish you would take a letter to Barnett and be sure that he reads it. I want him to send another man down here to take my place. But, see here, you're both tired and want to go to bed."

He rose and lighted a second lamp. "Mrs. Barnett's bed is in this room"—he opened a door on the side opposite—"I'll see if it is prepared."

Ann interposed. "Oh, no! I'm not so helpless as that. Let me take the light. I will do very, very, never fear."

He yielded to her. "I'll get you some water, and I hope there are some clean towels. Let me know if there is anything else I can do."

"You are very thoughtful."

"We try to keep that room ready, so that when the folks come down it will be tolerable."

"I'm quite sure it will do," she said definitely and entered the room.

Raymond turned to Louis. "Youngster, can you shoot?"

"Not very well."

"Learn. A man going round this country with a young woman wants to be prepared for war. He may never have any need of a gun, and then again, unexpected, he may. A gang of hoboes like that today is dangerous when they get to drinking, and it stands a man in hand." He made a sign commanding silence.

Ann reappeared with a pitcher in her hand. "If you'll fill this for me?"

"With pleasure," he quickly replied. After filling it and placing it in her room, he asked: "Now, which bag is yours? I'll pass that in."

"This one. But where are you and Louis to sleep?"

"Right here." He caught at a sort of frame hung upon the wall. It fell and was transformed into a bunk. "Right here, close beside your door, I'll put the youngster. I'll not take much sleep tonight. The boys will need some hot coffee when they come in." He walked to the door and stood there looking away toward the fire. "I'm afraid they're an all night job of it. The mountain wind is springing up."

"If you really feel that you ought to go," she began rather feebly.

"Would you feel safer if I stayed?" His voice possessed a note of tenderness as he asked this question. His tall form, outlined in the outer darkness, again appealed to her with power. She hesitated. "I never was among—I mean I have never been separated from my kind in this way before. I am a city dweller, and, I confess, I am a little nervous."

"Then you'd like me to stay?" he insisted.

"Yes, I wish you would."

"Then I will do so. I'm sure Barnett will excuse me when he knows."

Something—a whip, a pistol—snapped far out in the darkness, a little snapping sound, a puff of dust rose from Raymond's broad breast, and he put his hand to his heart with a quick, inward gasp of pain. "Oh!"

"What was that?" asked Ann.

He swayed back against the door frame, and a yellow white-pallor came over his face. "Some one has touched me," he said slowly through his set teeth. "It's that cowardly hound Speck. Go call your driver. I'm shot."

He tried to walk to a chair, but reeled and fell.

Ann's first impulse was toward laughter. It was so absurd, so melodramatic, so perfectly impossible. "He is trying to frighten us," she thought, looking down at him, but Louis ran out screaming for Watson.

Raymond partly rose and faced her. Big drops of agony sweat gleamed on his forehead. "It's no joke," he gasped, seeming to divine her feeling. "He's put it right through, just above my heart. Don't let me bleed to death."

He ended, with guttural harshness, and began to tear at his coat in the effort to get it off. As he took away his hand and studied his palm, which was red with blood, Ann's heart grew sick with horror. Her limbs grew numb and weak. Then, as she watched him tearing feebly at his coat, the long dormant woman in her awoke. She ceased to tremble and fell on her knees beside him.

"Let me help you," she said; and her voice was calm and clear, her fingers firm. When his coat was off he sank again exhausted, breathing hard.

"Cut away my shirt—get at that hole and plug it," he commanded. "Any—" thing that will fill it. You'll find some scissors there in that box—in the window."

"I'm shot," he tried to walk to a chair, but reeled.

His shirt was wet with blood, and yet the girl clipped it away with steady hands. He looked down at the wound and then smiled up to her. "I'm all right. It was a steel jacketed 30-30. It won't bleed much, and it's above my lung. I'll fool him yet."

The driver, wild of eye and much crumpled of hair, scrambled into the room. "Who did it? Who did it?"

"Never mind who did it. Plug this hole," commanded Raymond. "Bring some cold water and pour on it."

Ann saw that the driver's wits were too muddled to permit of proper action, and while her tense nerves quivered she bathed the wound, which was already ceasing to bleed.

"Turn me over, cap," called Raymond. "You'll find another vent on the other side."

Louis and the driver turned him gently on his face, and Ann was horrified to find an uglier wound than the other. Sick with horror as she was, she contrived to cut away the shirt and staunch the blood as before.

Raymond was recovering from the first shock of the wound, and though his breathing was troubled, his mind was clear. "Now, Watson," he said to the driver, "spread some blankets under me, and then you go out to the corral and take my brown mare, with the saddle on, and slide out for Wallace and bring a doctor. Don't urge the mare—just let her take her gait—and don't ride her back. Leave her there."

After the driver had helped him to a bed on a blanket Raymond added: "Now, I've got to be quiet and wait, that's all there is about it." He looked at Ann. "You can go to bed and sleep. Youngster, you're in for sentinel duty tonight."

Ann interrupted him. "You must not talk, not another word! Lie perfectly still. We will keep cool bandages on your wound till the doctor comes."

He submitted to her directions and lay quiet, moving only to allow her to change the compress. Louis, when he knew what was needed, became almost as deaf as Ann and relieved her of the painful task of replacing the bandages. But the powerful frame of the ranchman grew each moment more inert, and at last they could not dress the wound at his back.

SENATE ADMITS OKLAHOMA AS STATE—BUT NOT ARIZONA

warded at his request. Mr. Beveridge entered a vehement sweeping denial, and the incident closed.

Use Polygamy as Club.

Notable speeches were made by Messrs. Dubois and Burrows in denunciation of polygamy in Arizona and New Mexico. Mr. Dubois secured the incorporation of an anti-polygamy amendment, but the elimination of Arizona and New Mexico from the measure detracted somewhat from the importance of the accomplishment.

The first important vote came upon the Foraker amendment, which proposed to permit the people of Arizona and New Mexico at separate elections to decide for themselves whether they would come into the Union as one state, the amendment being so drawn that a majority of the people of Arizona could prevent joint statehood. It passed 42 to 29.

The next important amendment was that offered by Senator Burrows of Michigan, striking from the bill all reference to Arizona and New Mexico. The vote upon the amendment while the senate was in committee of the whole was a tie, 35 to 35, when Mr. Scott of West Virginia returned to the senate chamber. The door by which he entered brought him into contact with Senators Beveridge, Dick and Hopkins, all friends of the bill. He asserts that he asked them the question before the senate, being in a hurry to have his vote recorded before roll call was completed; the reply he received caused him to vote "No." His vote defeated the amendment, although every senator present knew it was his purpose to vote for it. A hasty conference resulted in a decision not to attempt to change the vote, but to wait until the bill was out of committee of the whole, when another vote could be had upon the amendment.

TRADE CONCESSIONS DENIED

England Not Hopeful of Persuading United States.

London, March 10.—Great Britain has not received a reply from the United States government to her communication asking to be allowed to participate in the privileges of the Dingley tariff and is not hopeful of her contention being admitted. Of the countries having favored nation clauses in their tariff acts Germany is the only one giving Great Britain the advantage of it, and this is not by treaty but by an act passed by the reichstag annually. Great Britain believes that her case is strong, but so far she has been unable to convince other nations of its fairness.

Forty Miners Killed in Austria. Vienna, March 10.—By the collapse of the gallery staging in Carl's mine at Raibl, district of Trarls, forty miners and one engineer were killed.

Spring Suit Sale..

March 12th and 13th, Monday and Tuesday, are the days set for our first display and sale of Women's Suits, Separate Jackets, Tourist Coats, etc.

This will be an important event, and we feel safe in saying that all special orders taken will be received before Easter. Mr. Rittenhouse, who has conducted many special suit sales for us, will have with him samples representing the great garment makers—Strawbridge & Clothier of Philadelphia.

When special measures are taken for Suits for women who usually have trouble in getting fitted, we have the jacket linings sent to us first, and same are fitted to customers by our tailorless, which insures satisfaction. Women who are difficult to fit need have no hesitancy about ordering a suit as we take all the risk.

The pretty new things will be shown, such as white and light colored spring creations in Jackets, Tourist Coats, Suits, fancy Silk Coats and Wraps. This will be a rare opportunity to get posted and we want every one to feel free to come. Two days, remember, March 12th and 13th.
